Dear Kenneth

I recently read about the solar fields that are up for debate. I am an avid supporter of the use of alternative power and have had solar panels on my for over 10 years. However I cannot condone the destruction of forest land to put up arrays. Yes I'm sure the solar developers have shown that the CO2 saved after X years is greater than that produced by the trees. However there is nothing that will replace the wildlife and the beauty of the Forest. I would strongly ask that you do not allow this development to go through. There must be open land or an old cranberry bog that is better suited for new solar fields

Sincerely Sherrie Tafuri 164 Hathaway st Wareham
